

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An apparatus for electrotherapy has a checking circuit. The checking circuit is used for checking the functions of the apparatus in a test routine or for requesting the status of components in the apparatus. The apparatus is provided with communication means which interact with the checking circuit and are used for transmitting data, for example the result of a test routine, to a receiver.